

2014 Open Access Survey

Exploring how the views of Taylor & Francis and Routledge authors are changing year-on-year

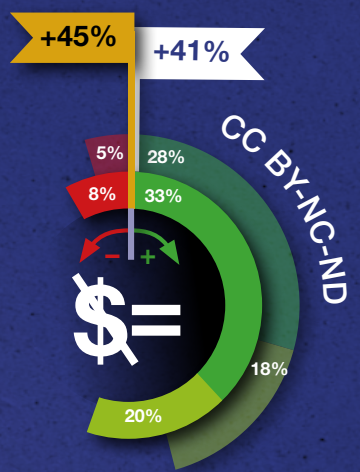

Perceived benefits of Open Access publishing

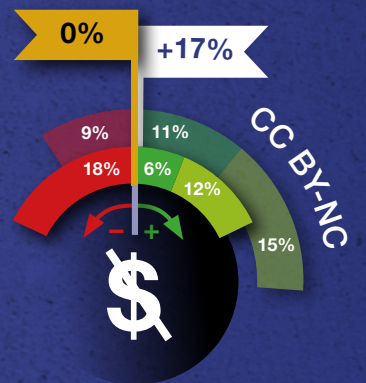

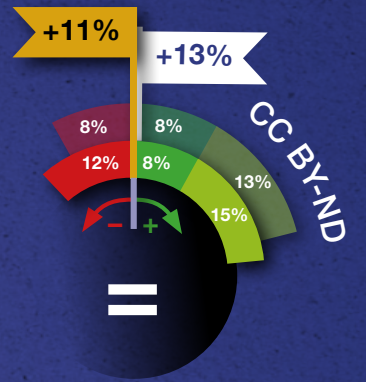

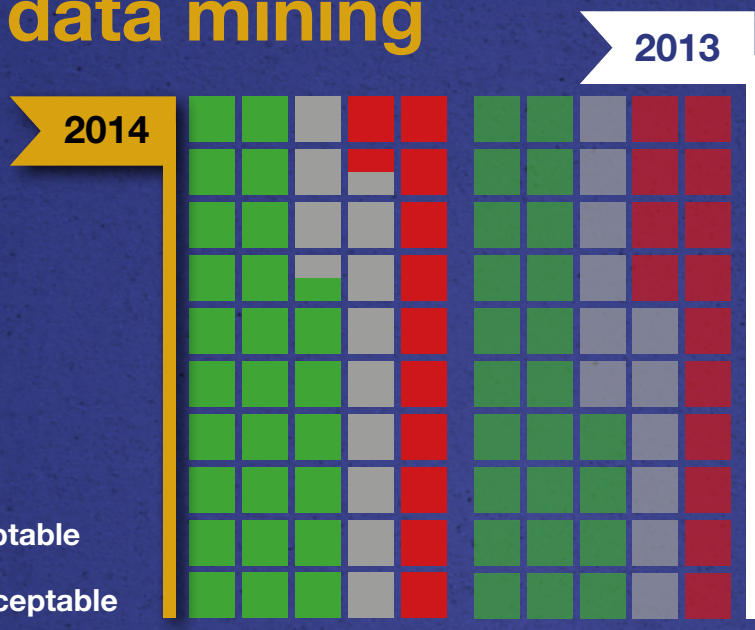

% shown is level of agreement

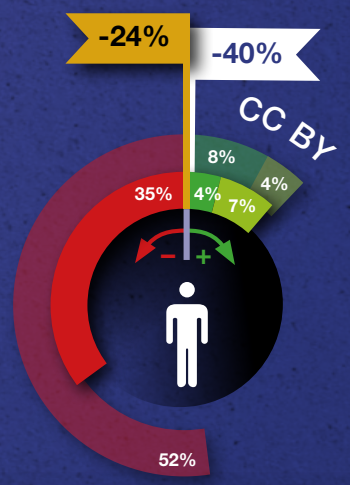

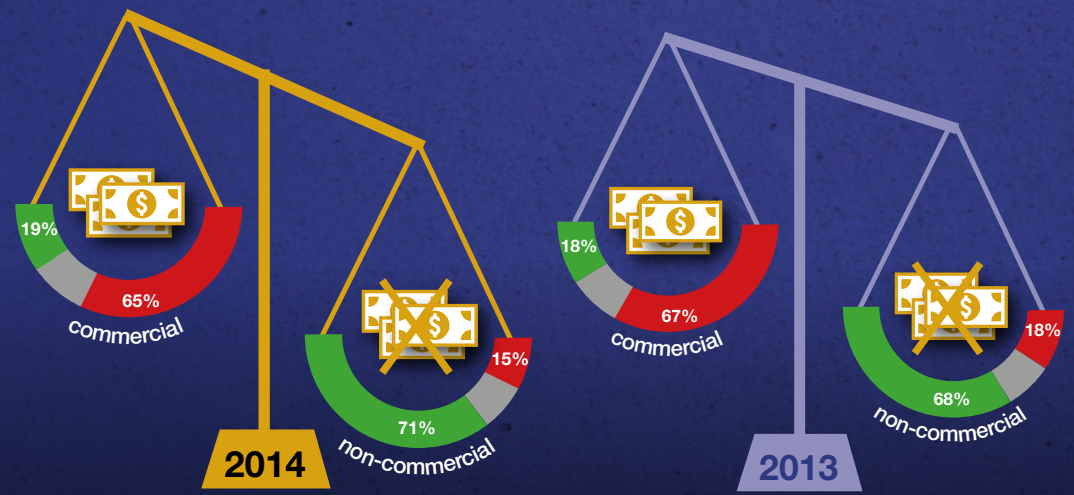

Creative Commons license preferences

Acceptability of text and data mining

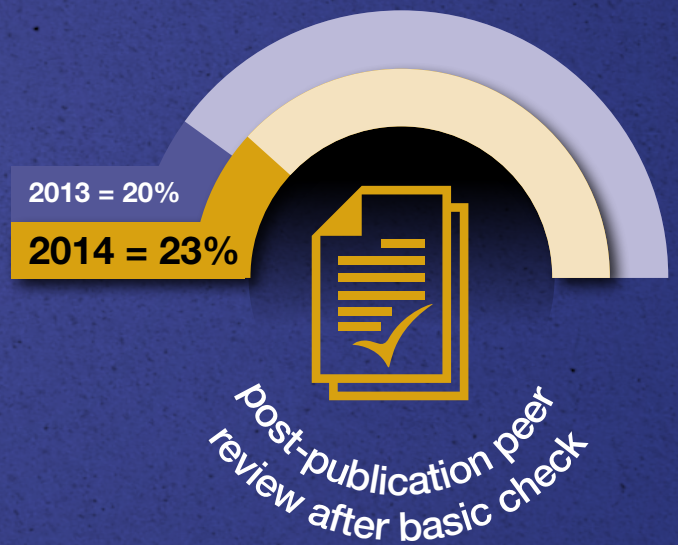

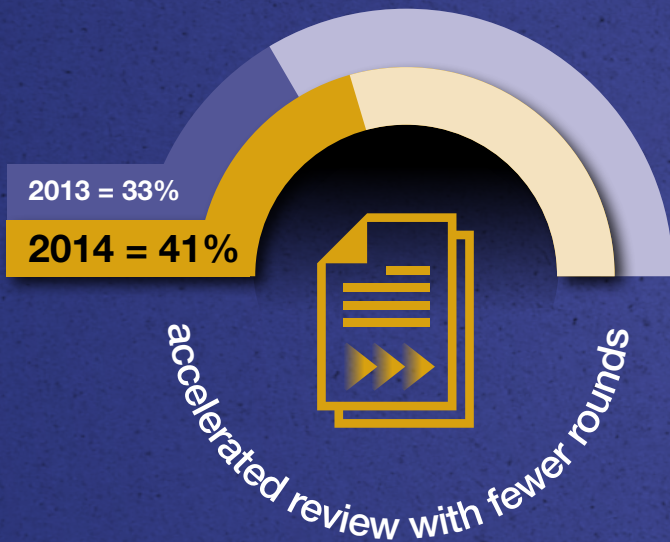

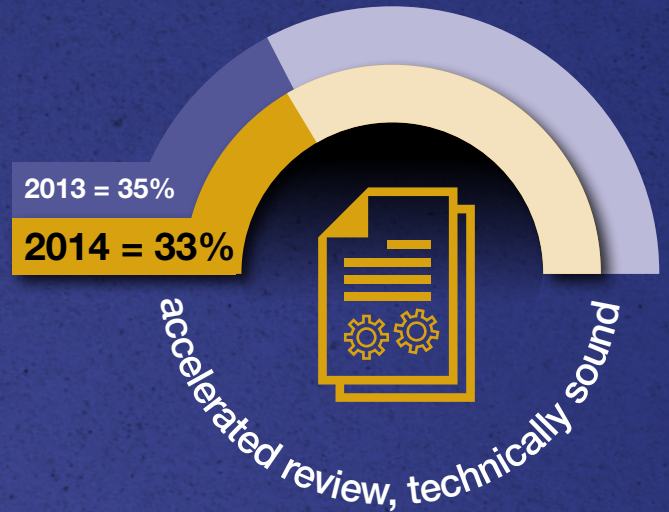

Commercial vs. non-commercial article re-use

Peer review preferences

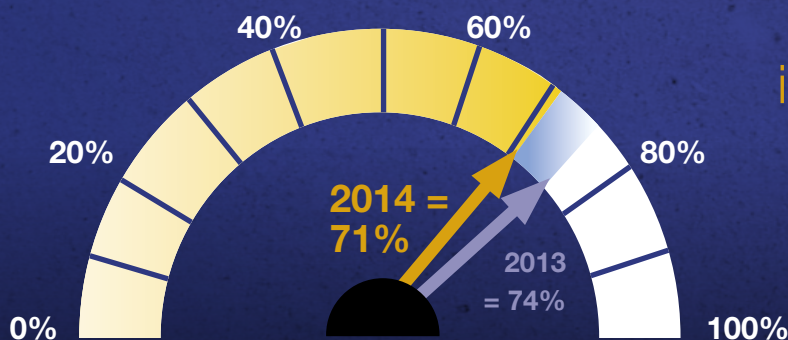

How often authors find each of the following types of peer review useful % shown are the authors who selected 'often' or 'always'

Importance of rapid peer review

% authors who rate the importance of rapid peer review 4 or 5 out of 5

Taylor & Francis Group an informa business

2014 Open Access Survey
Exploring how the views of Taylor & Francis authors are changing year-on-year

Future intentions on publishing Gold and Green Open Access

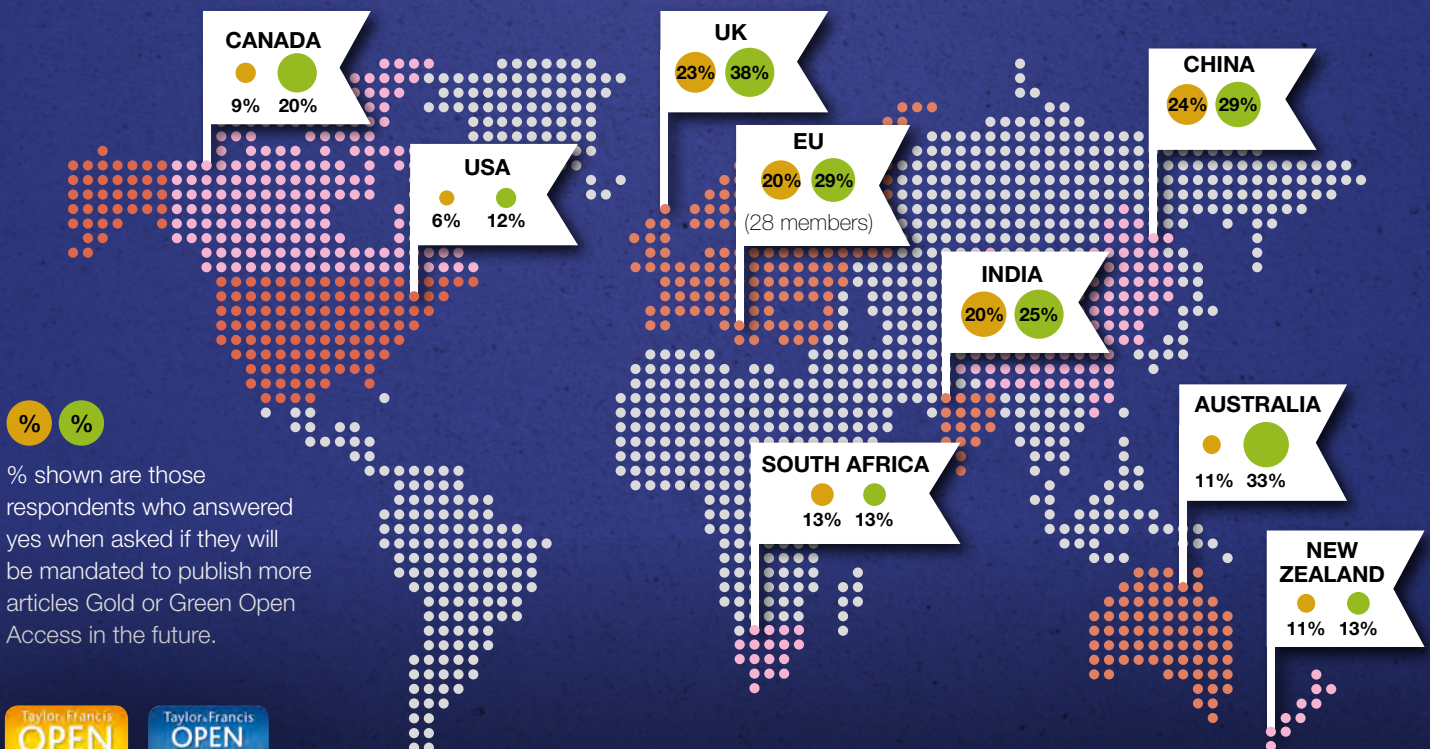

Authors choosing to publish Gold or Green

All countries with more than 100 respondents to these questions are included

% shown are those respondents who answered yes when asked if they will choose to publish more articles Gold or Green Open Access in the future.

Authors mandated to choose Gold or Green

% shown are those respondents who answered yes when asked if they will be mandated to publish more articles Gold or Green Open Access in the future.

